

The Nehru Centre

8 South Audley Street, London, W1K 1HF

Tue 08 March 6.15 pm

Exhibition of Photographs : The Real Women of India
Lesley Saunders

This exhibition portrays Lesley Saunders' perceptions of the resilience and fortitude that these amazing individuals display. On travelling throughout India both with business and leisure, she found herself in awe of the inner strength, the beauty, the steadfastness and the contentment of these amazing women, who stand tall with pride in a plethora of situations that maybe some of us would find it a challenge to cope with. Measuring success is not all about wealth and very often we do not see the success beyond material achievement. The photographs displayed in her exhibitions in Bangalore and New Delhi that will also be on display, shows the emotions and strength of these women. Lesley is also privileged to support ROKO Cancer through her' exhibitions; a cause that truly helps women fight against breast cancer by giving them the power of knowledge to identify abnormalities and receive treatment in a timely manner to help them fight this dreadful disease. These are women with an inner strength that often they are unaware they had, a true strength shown by women.

Elle Jé is the alter ego of an enigmatic and charismatic lady, Lesley Saunders, who has travelled the world over the years, and took up photography as a stress buster only a couple of years ago. Her visits to India over the last two years, gave her sterling opportunities to capture rare moments through her lens. She portrays the strength, beauty and fortitude of the people of this amazing country with diverse cultures. Lesley has this mysterious and instinctive talent to capture amazing pictures, showing reality. Her talent is uncanny. (www.elleje.com)

Open until 11 March during office hours